FOCUS

Neisson marks a completely new development: after 16 years of editions, the range now includes a rum for the first time. Neisson was chosen for its connection with La Maison du Whisky and for the distillery's unwavering commitment to quality. It is also the first time that Neisson has bottled its rum in a shape other than its traditional bottle, the famous Zépol Karé, and has commissioned the labels from a Martinican artist, Johanna Reynaud, known by her pseudonym Gribouilliz. The range begins with the white rum L'Esprit, which is in itself the ultimate expression of the terroir, and all the more so here, as it is a single-terroir rum. Next come the aged rums, each matured in a different type of wood to capture the nuances that each cask imparts to the rum.
